Thank you so much for considering booking 'The Beginning' programme! This writing package is designed to help you make sense of the first stages of writing a novel, setting you up for success down the writing road. It's like hiring a personal trainer for your specific idea. Let's dig into the package and break it down so you can see what we'll do together.

Preliminary Stage

Initial 2-Hour Zoom Call

First of all, we'll schedule a 2-hour Zoom call to discuss your ideas, initial plot, characters, and overall vision for the novel. We will explore potential directions for your story and set some initial goals together. We will also talk about any specific struggles you are facing while writing. This will help me understand how I can help you move forward.

For a Month Following

30-minute Weekly Zoom Calls

Next, we'll schedule four weekly 30-minute Zoom calls so that I can provide you with ongoing support and guidance. These sessions will focus on addressing specific challenges, providing feedback, and discussing your progress. I find that we can get through a lot in 30 minutes, and it's enough time to really get you to move forward with your writing plan.
During our last call, we'll focus on the next steps in the writing process to make sure you keep progressing.

Supporting Materials

A workbook

You'll get a comprehensive workbook made to assist you with structuring your ideas, setting goals, finding the time to write, and formulating your novel plans. It will include exercises to develop characters, plots, and more.

Additional Offer

Incentive for Progress

Because I know that you'll succeed in writing your novel, I'll offer you a future 10% discount on 'The End' package.

This structured program offers both coaching and editing support and is aimed at guiding you from the burgeoning stages of developing a novel through to the first few chapters. It'll take you from feeling overwhelmed to giving you clarity, transforming your ideas into a coherent plan for an engaging novel.
